

Summary

This lecture introduces the fundamental concepts of data classification, which form the basis for statistical analysis. Students will learn how data can be categorized into qualitative (categorical) and quantitative (numerical) types